

The Foschini Group Donates R540 000 to the Cape Talk Cares Radiothon

100 orphaned and vulnerable children will receive care for the next 3 years, thanks to a donation by the Foschini Group to the Cape Talk Cares Radiothon. The initiative which ran on Cape Talk on Monday, 25th January went on to raise R3.7 million.

All money collected is going to Ikamva Labantu, an organisation that supports vulnerable and orphaned children through interventions and activities designed to ensure that these children receive adequate care within their communities and in a home environment. Ikamva Labantu has a solid track record with 45 years community development experience. For more information on this organisation, go to their website on www.ikamva.com

The Foschini Group committed to providing funding of R180 000 a year for 3 years. This approach is in line with our criteria as we believe that providing significant funds for a defined period of time is more sustainable. This project meets the criteria of our CSI policy, i.e providing support for orphans and vulnerable children infected and affected by HIV AIDS.

John Maytham is taken aback by The Foschini Group's generous donation of R180 000 each year for the next 3 years.
